

p bed

Emboldened by his efforts in a small garden, writer Tom Sharpe (above) bought a hideous house for its inviting one and a half acres. But as he relates, only the professional touch erased his blot on the landscape. Photograph by George Wright